SHOSHONE KING OF DESERT

Nowhere within the wide territory from Colorado to the Pacific, south of Goldfield, is there another mine which will equal the Montgomery Shoshone as a producer. With its new milling plant in operation there will be none that can approach it in comparison, unless it should be the Johnnie mine, which is also a state of expansion, both as to reserves and reduction capacity. Still the pioneer of the Bullfrog leads them all and will apparently keep the lead for a series of future years.—Rhyolite Herald.
